FEATURES

A LOOK BACK

SCRUBBING IN

I AM NAVY MEDICINE

NAVY MEDICINE IN FOCUS

Corpsman with 9th Marine Regiment recognized for actions in Helmand province

BY VJOHNSON - MARCH 6, 2014

POSTED IN: NEWS

By Cpl. Cody Haas, Regional Command Southwest

PATROL BASE BOLDAK, Afghanistan-If a Marine is seriously injured during a patrol, having a skilled Navy corpsman on the scene can mean the difference between life and death.

Seaman Jacob M. Schlauder, a corpsman with 3rd Platoon, Charlie Company, 1st Battalion, 9th Marine Regiment, was awarded the Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal with combat distinguishing device for heroic actions while serving as a corpsman with 9th Marines by commandant of the Marine Corps Gen. James F. Amos, aboard Camp Leatherneck, Helmand province, Afghanistan, Feb. 18.

He never thought he would save someone's life on his first deployment, he said.

"I joined the Navy to see the world," said Schlauder, a 20-year-old native of Stonington, Conn.

Recent Posts

- I AM NAVY MEDICINE
- 'Unwavering Strength' for a New Year, New
- I AM NAVY MEDICINE
- Independent Duty Corpsman A Specialized Lifesaver
- NAVY MEDICINE IN FOCUS

Recent Comments

- Jami Mesgar on 'Unwavering Strength' for a New Year, New You
- Chuck Bryan on I AM NAVY MEDICINE
- Richard G. Shuster on A brief history of the U.S. Navy Independent Duty Corpsman
- Anna Schwarz on I AM NAVY MEDICINE
- Shannon Dittlinger on I AM NAVY MEDICINE

Archives

- January 2015
- December 2014
- November 2014
- September 2014
- August 2014
- July 2014
- June 2014
- May 2014
- April 2014 March 2014
- February 2014
- January 2014
- December 2013 November 2013
- October 2013

Categories

- A LOOK BACK
- FEATURES
- I AM NAVY MEDICINE
- NAVY MEDICINE IN FOCUS

Schlauder distinguished himself during a vehicle patrol in Helmand province on Jan. 25 by rendering lifesaving medical aid to injured Marines despite being wounded himself.

"He's a born leader," said Navy Lt. Shawn Consey, assistant battalion surgeon, 1st Bn., 9th Marines. "He's involved in every aspect of 3rd Platoon and 100 percent dedicated to the Marines, and it shows."

While his platoon provided assistance to another unit engaged in a firefight with enemy insurgents, a rocket-propelled grenade struck his vehicle, critically wounding the turret gunner and patrol leader.

Despite suffering a traumatic brain injury that caused him to repeatedly lose consciousness, he persistently performed lifesaving actions to stop the bleeding from a partial amputation and addressed several other significant shrapnel injuries, ultimately saving the lives of the turret gunner and the patrol leader.

"At the time I kept thinking, 'What do I need to do now?' and 'Who else needs my help?' Schlauder said.

As the only medical provider on scene that day, his calm composure under fire was instrumental in stabilizing several casualties that may have otherwise lost their lives.

"He's a force multiplier," Consey said. "He's an outstanding corpsman and an exceptional rifleman. As a corpsman assigned to an infantry platoon, he's perfectly qualified for any situation, whether it's patrolling or saving lives. He's

- NEWS
- SCRUBBING IN

Meta

- Log in
- Entries RSS
- Comments RSS
- WordPress.org

excellent at both."  "I think that's why I like my job so much," he said. "I get to make a difference saving the lives of my brothers."  About vjohnson
Copyright Navy Medicine Magazine. All Rights Reserved.	About Arras WordPress Theme